

WHEN I DIED

tuning: dadgad

When I died, I went to Heaven
Which wasn't such a big surprise
I was among the saved and chosen
We gave each other a high five
But then a number of our brethren
Looked around and then declared
We weren't the only ones in Heaven
Everybody else was there

All the fools and pleasure-seekers
All the cheaters, and what's worse
All the wayward disbelievers
With whom I had to share the earth
I will admit I was confused then
And didn't think that it was fair
That when I finally got to Heaven
Everybody else was there

Then the Almighty came and found us
Those of us who just arrived
Shone a blazing light around us
Looked at us with loving eyes, and said
I'd never throw you in the inferno
That would be cruel and just plain wrong
So welcome all to life eternal
Welcome all to Heaven's throng

I'd never throw you in the inferno
That would be cruel and just plain wrong
So welcome all to life eternal
Now can you all just get along?
